DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

Extensively altered, this large and rambling frame house probably constructed in the late 19th century, is now somewhat plain and stark. The original siding has been covered by asphalt siding and the architectural ornamentation removed. On the front is a rectangular three story tower with a gable roof and shingled rain-hoods supported by carved brackets over the third story windows. This is practically the only remaining vestige of 19th century detail. Also on the front of the house is a two story bay window under a gable and a one story porch with a plain pediment. In the center of the hip roof are two chimneys.

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

Although this was once an ornate Victorian type home, it has been extensively altered and the "gingerbread" removed. Asphalt siding, now in need of paint, covers the original siding. Large and rambling, the house is stark in appearance and sadly lacks its original character and integrity.
